

ARDEN

A NEW MYSTERY-COMEDY AUDIO DRAMA
CREATED BY EMILY VANDERWERFF, CHRISTOPHER DOLE, AND SARA GHALEB

THE STORY:

10 years ago, starlet Julie Capsom ran her car off the road and vanished, leaving behind a male torso in her trunk. Now by-the-books reporter Bea Casely and unconventional detective Brenda Bentley find themselves working together on a new podcast, "Arden", to finally solve this bizarre case – a podcast that soon becomes equally dedicated to Bea and Brenda's fiery working relationship. Can Bea and Brenda solve the case without adding another death to the Capsom Case Curse? Join us, won't you, on Arden.

THE SHOW:

Back in 2016 longtime podcaster Emily pitched her writing partner, Chris, the idea "Serial meets Moonlighting" and as a lifelong audio drama fan Chris was sold. Then they brought it to a comedy writer, Sara, who still does not know what Moonlighting is but was just happy to be included. Then they started making it and realized that if they made Bruce Willis a lesbian it would make everything better and they were right. Thus was Arden born.

THE CREW:

Created, Written, and Produced by Emily VanDerWerff, Christopher Dole, & Sara Ghaleb

Additional Writing: Libby Hill
Audio Engineer: Elizabeth Aubert
Sound Editing by Christina Holleran, Linus Edwards, and Bridge Keen
Music composed by Chris Hatfield
Logo designed by Dylan Farr

RATING:

Arden is appropriate for teens and older. Profanity is bleeped out but the series deals with mature themes such as death, violence, and sexual assault.
